

Code of Conduct

Believing that we have both the God given right and the Constitutional right to educate our children at home, the Easley Home Educators Support Group has been organized to offer support and encouragement to those families desiring to do so. Because we want our children raised in an environment conducive to good moral and philosophical instruction, with a traditional Judeo/Christian emphasis, we have developed the following standards as our code of conduct.

- 1) A self-perpetuating Board of Directors who is solidly committed to a Biblical philosophy will govern this support group. Officers will be chosen, if deemed necessary by the Board of Directors.
- 2) We respect the right of each family to discipline their children according to their own conscience, providing the children are not disruptive or disrespectful in their language or behavior. We will not, however, permit the disregard of rules to negatively affect the activities we attempt to provide for the group at large, or cause us to lose privileges to meet in a given facility or give our organization an unfavorable reputation. Therefore, where there is a rule violation, or an inappropriate response to adult supervision, the child will be given a warning and parents will be notified. Continuing violation will result in the child not being allowed to further participate in that activity. Suspension in one activity could jeopardize the child's participation in all activities.
- 3) During EHE activities, conduct in public places should be such as to maintain a proper image in order to manifest home schooling as a viable educational alternative. This conduct includes, but is not limited to, the new EHE standard of dress and high school standard of participation.

We are seeking to support, encourage, and provide information for those who are home schooling and who are attempting to make their children good, well-rounded citizens. However, membership privileges are limited to those who are willing to be involved. Therefore each family must help in at least one activity each year, although in order to build relationships we do strongly recommend that each family be involved in more than just one activity. For discipline and liability purposes, parents are required to be present at any activity in which their child(ren) are participating.
